VEHICLE NUMBER PLATE SECURITY

If you want to buy a set of number plates from a legitimate supplier, you will have to present the vehicle registration document and prove who you are, so thieves often resort to stealing number plates from a vehicle on the street or in a quiet corner of a car park etc.

As a result of CCTV and ANPR (Automatic Number Plate Recognition) stolen plates are needed to disguise another car to aid in a number of crimes. For example:

- Changing the identity of a stolen car so it can be sold
 - Vehicle crime and burglaries etc.
 - Driving off from petrol stations without paying
- Evading congestion charges, parking and speeding fines
 - Driver document offences

If the number plates are stolen from your car, you should report it to the police straight away – you might start receiving parking fines, speeding fines or police investigations.

How to protect your plates

- Use a garage at night if you can
- Park in busy, well-lit areas if you have to park on the street
 - Use safe, well-lit public car parks
- Consider using security screws which can be turned easily using a screwdriver to fit them but cannot be undone using normal tools.
- Consider using theft-resistant number plates which may cost a little more but are designed to resist known attack methods and will break apart if someone tries to remove them by force.
- If your plates are stolen, replace them with a new design so they are different to the lost ones as soon as possible.
 - Report all suspicious behaviour
